Author This is a highly combustible relationship movie about a belligerent, grandiose thinking and extremely angry father who was never 'there', and a neglected son who vacillates between trying to care and totally giving up on him. Smartly directed by Paul Weitz and richly adapted from Nick Flynn's own memoir of "Another Bulls**t Night In Suck City", the film also gives a darkly atmospheric account of the homeless in the big city and an opportunity to see this excruciatingly painful side of life for yourself. Heavy Petting is proof that a dog CAN make a difference in the quality.

Alright, so it didn't win me over initially- it took time for the storyline to develop because quite frankly, the first 30 minutes of film are pretty darn awful and cliched focusing entirely around two single men doing really idiotic and unfunny things at a nightclub in an attempt to impress the ladies.

Buying a chew toy to get in good with the girl's dog? Man has had dog's in the teepee for 25000 years, but it may be the women who tamed them first? There has to be some philosophy for this, because it begs logic. The nice guy is blue and goes to a party at which he meets a girl who is lonely like him.

Charlie and he begins to enjoy being with the dog more than the lady.

As the story moves along, the adorable dog weaves her way into the very heart of Charlie and he begins to enjoy being with the dog more than the lady.

I was all ready to sit here and claim that Heavy Petting is just another predictably written romantic film but then...

Amazing. Despite some unfavorable reviews here on Amazon, I decided to give this movie a try.

The characters are engaging and the storyline is sweet.

Then the man turns around and does the same thing to the dog!!! - When the dog was digging in the mans pants at the exact moment the man was attempting to make his first move on the girl, lol. Overall, Heavy Petting is proof that a dog CAN make a difference in the quality.

Boy meets girl who loves dogs.

Charlie going to pull off acting like one for his new lady. As the story moves along, the adorable dog weaves her way into the very heart of Charlie and he begins to enjoy being with the dog more than the lady.

Charlie and he begins to enjoy being with the dog more than the lady.

I personally would sit through again.

I liked Charlie but my favorite was Babydoll who I am sure could woo anyone to her side with the blink of her adorable eyes. But to me the story lags a bit and the main highlights were the antics between the man and dog.

Boy beds girl to aggravate dog.

This happens later in the film. - When the man was trying to sleep and the dog would sneak up towards his face and let out a shocking bark, lol.

Girl gets a new dog boy can't stand.

I was honestly preparing myself for the worst but then, to my surprise, the movie *does* slowly improve once the dog enters the picture. A couple scenes that were really hysterical to me were the following- - When the man enters a pet store and asks for the biggest toy available.

Van Dyke in that he possesses both boyish goofiness and great comedic timing.

Now he is in big trouble because without one, he cannot have the other. This movie was somewhat entertaining but not one that I personally would sit through again.

Comparison Summary

Generator 5 is an update of generator 3, which we have favored so far because of how natural its output are. The amazon data set had given us the opportunity to create a product specific review generator, Generator 5. Generator 5 does solve one of our project problems - relating the sentences into a central idea.

One of the things that can go wrong with a product specific review can be seen at Tuple Order = 3 Review # 1 from the Generator 5 Output Test. This might be a result of having a small review data set for that specific review.
